Dear James:

What in the world happened that you did not even answer my letter with the money order enclosed to say you received it.

There is nothing much to say to you at this time, as I do not know what to think. When you wrote and asked me for the money, you told me the army had rejected you, and you wanted to come here and go into a defence plant to work. There is plenty work here, and at present all the boys are working, Pearson, Hoobgood, Hooker, Stone, Wells, and Dandridge are all here. The baseball is going ahead with plans for a big year next year. We will be able to play night ball up this way again.

Please let me hear something from you right away. I hope your family is well.

Very Truly Yours
